

ART AND SOCIAL JUSTICE

What is a Portrait?

Photographic portraits from the Smithsonian's 2008 exhibit, "Let Your Motto Be Resistance: African American Portraits."

Frederick Douglass

Unidentified Photographer, 1856

Frederick Douglass was born into slavery and escaped in 1838. He fought to get rid of slavery and helped countless others escape to freedom.

TEACHING TOLERANCE

A PROJECT OF THE SOUTHERN POVERTY LAW CENTER
TOLERANCE.ORG

EARLY GRADES ACTIVITY

Photographic portraits from the Smithsonian's 2008 exhibit, "Let Your Motto Be Resistance: African American Portraits."

Sojourner Truth

by Randall Studio, 1865

Born a slave in 1797 in Ulster County, N.Y., Sojourner Truth spoke out against slavery and injustice and for women's rights

TEACHING TOLERANCE

A PROJECT OF THE SOUTHERN POVERTY LAW CENTER
TOLERANCE.ORG

EARLY GRADES ACTIVITY

Photographic portraits from the Smithsonian's 2008 exhibit, "Let Your Motto Be Resistance: African American Portraits."

W.E.B. Du Bois

by Addison N. Scurlock, 1911

W.E.B. Du Bois is one of the most important thinkers, philosophers and activists in the history of the United States. He wrote a great deal about civil rights, focusing on the ideas behind race and inequality and how to overcome prejudice. He believed that education, science and the world of big ideas were the most important tools in fighting for change.

TEACHING TOLERANCE

A PROJECT OF THE SOUTHERN POVERTY LAW CENTER
TOLERANCE.ORG

EARLY GRADES ACTIVITY

Photographic portraits from the Smithsonian's 2008 exhibit, "Let Your Motto Be Resistance: African American Portraits."

Sarah Vaughan

by Josef Breitenbach, 1950

Sarah Vaughan was one of the most well-known vocalists of her lifetime, 1924-1990. Her strong and beautiful voice drew attention to jazz music all over the world. She performed as a soloist as well as part of ensembles and was known for the tremendous amount of feeling and power she incorporated into her music.