Defining Universal Design

Universal Design is the design of communications, products and environments to be usable by all people to the greatest extent possible, without the need for adaptation or specialized design. Universal design benefits people of all ages and abilities. It can include both physical and nonphysical features that benefit all users, such as including wheelchair ramps in the design of buildings and captioning features on televisions.